Overview of fasdNL Initiatives
a growing team

fasdNL has grown from a team of 3 to a team of 10 in the past 2 years, with the addition of 7 dedicated researchers. This has allowed us to expand our research initiatives.

Toward prevention: Atlantic FASD Cohort Study

A three-year FASD project in partnership with the Atlantic Provinces Addictions Research Centre and all Health Authorities in Atlantic Canada.

Parent and caregiver supports

Parents and caregivers are a key source of information and skill-building. To support and empower them, we have developed a number of initiatives.

2020-2021 Activities

This report outlines the research undertaken by fasdNL from September 2020 to September 2021. Following the COVID-19 pandemic, fasdNL has undertaken a number of new research initiatives and has expanded the capacity of existing research initiatives across the province.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we observed downturns in our work simultaneously providing us with opportunities to develop new research initiatives.

In early 2021, we developed and delivered a new webinar about supports for parents during the pandemic. We also developed a new research project to support parents and caregivers of children with FASD during the pandemic. This project is ongoing in 2021.

Following the launch of the Atlantic FASD Community Research Network in July 2019, the Network has undertaken a number of initiatives to support the development of FASD research capacity in Atlantic Canada.

fasdNL began preliminary work on the first comprehensive community-based needs assessment about FASD in Newfoundland and Labrador. This project began in 2018 and is ongoing in 2021. We have also undertaken a number of community-based research projects in Labrador, including a project to support parents and caregivers of children with FASD during the pandemic and a project to support youth with FASD during the transition to adulthood.

In 2020-2021, we undertook a number of awareness, training and collaborative activities including the launch of a new webinar series and a number of webinars about FASD and the pandemic. We also undertook a number of collaborative activities with the Canadian Research Initiative in Substance Misuse (CRISM), our formally announced by Scott Simms, Member of Parliament for Coast of Bays-Central-Notre Dame, on behalf of the Honourable Patty Hajdu, PC, MP, Minister of Health. Additional information about these activities is provided in this report.
